DISORDERLY ON CAR

Negro Who Figured in Recent Trouble Picked Up by Police.

James Woodson, colored, was arrested yesterday morning by Detectives Kellam and Atkinson on the charge of disorderly conduct and resisting capture. He was taken to the station and held in the cell. The arrest of Woodson and his rescue by the negroes created considerable excitement at the time. He was disorderly while aboard a car in charge of Schreiner and Motorman L. Charles. His actions made it necessary to place him under arrest, and when the car was stopped to turn him over to the police, Saunders and Stokes stepped aboard and forcibly freed him. All three then escaped.

Not until yesterday was it known who the disorderly negro was. His identity was discovered by the detectives several days ago, and they succeeded in locating him yesterday in Seventeenth Street. He was taken to the First Police Station and bailed for his appearance in Police Court this morning.

SENTENCED TO ONE MINUTE IN JAIL

Attorneys for Defendants, Charged With Dispensing Whiskey During Election, Note Appeal.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Meherin, Va., June 28.—The trials of the recent indictments returned against W. Y. Farncees, J. W. Farncees, B. E. Guiding and William Blackwell for dispensing whiskey at the November election was called at Lunenburg Courthouse on Thursday, and the one against W. Y. Farncees was gone into, and a verdict of $25 fine and one minute in jail was returned against him. The rest of those charged with the same offense admitted to the court that they did give some of their friends a drink after they had cast their ballot, and the same fine and jail sentence was recorded against them. The attorneys for the defense immediately noted an appeal, and the case will be argued before this tribunal during the fall term. Their bail was fixed by the court at $100, which was immediately furnished, and the parties released.

These cases have created much interest in this county, and the outcome is being eagerly awaited. The contested election case of Stokes and others vs. O. S. Hatchett, for the office of county treasurer was argued today in order to seat A. S. Bridgeforth on account of report claimed by them to have been made in summing up the results.

It is not expected that a decision will be rendered in this case until tomorrow morning. The outcome of this section who feel a keen interest in the proceedings on account of the long drawn out affair, and the fact that Mr. Hatchett was declared elected at the November election, and issued a certificate to that effect, and a decision of the court today would decide the contest over this office in favor of Mr. Hatchett, and rendered a written opinion. Immediately the attorneys for Mr. Bridgeforth charged that the court had erred in its calculation, and argued for a reopening which was granted and is at present being heard.
